

“I started off about two years back. My first assignment was a couple of factories because obviously I have an engineering background so that’s where they found it logical to send me.”