

I have an MBA degree from the top most business school of Pakistan and I have been in the corporate world I rather say the FMCG industry. It has been almost 3 years now and as far as Unilever is concerned, I interned here long time back when I was in business school. During my internship over here I completely fell in love with this place. It was in “Walls” only where I interned and at that point in time it was like a dream place to work for. I have worked in other Multi National Companies too but “Walls” is like the heart out place.
